New Practice Group for Renewable Energy, Environment and Regulated Markets

The new Eurojuris practice group ‘Energy, Environment and Regulated Markets’ aims to connect members that are active in the fields of Energy Law, Renewable Energies, Sustainable Industries, Environment, New Technologies and Regulated Markets. Rather than focusing on (theoretically) separate legal areas that may affect these fields, the aim is to create a platform that adapts to the diverse reality of international project development and this rapidly developing field.

The intention is to regularly exchange information with colleagues on important legal, economic, and political developments in the various countries and to organize joint (online) events. In particular, lecturers and participants from relevant companies and in-house lawyers will be invited to the events.

The group is founded by initiative of the German and Spanish lawyer Pia V. Kohrs, from the Spanish law firm Mariscal & Abogados.
